Diminishing Return

Level E

The probability of being born a male is 0.466.

The probability of being born in North America is 0.153846.

The probability of being born in an urban location is 0.3571428.

Find the exact probability that a baby will be born a male, in North America, in an urban location.

Explain the method you used to find your solution.